Cleansing of the Temple

Since the Passover of the Jews was near, Jesus went up to Jerusalem. He found in the temple area those who sold oxen, sheep, and doves, as well as the money-changers seated there. He made a whip out of cords and drove them all out of the temple area, with the sheep and oxen, and spilled the coins of the money-changers and overturned their tables, and to those who sold doves he said, "Take these out of here, and stop making my Father's house a marketplace." His disciples recalled the words of Scripture, Zeal for your house will consume me. At this the Jews answered and said to him, "What sign can you show us for doing this?" Jesus answered and said to them, "Destroy this temple and in three days I will raise it up." The Jews said, "This temple has been under construction for forty-six years, and you will raise it up in three days?" But he was speaking about the temple of his Body. Therefore, when he was raised from the dead, his disciples remembered that he had said this, and they came to believe the Scripture and the word Jesus had spoken.

John 2:13-22

Dedication of the Lateran Basilica

The calendar has done it again. Just as with last weekend, the 2014 calendar brings to a Sunday a feast usually lost to most hard-working Christians by occurring on a weekday. It is called the "Dedication of the Lateran Basilica." So, in modern parlance, "What's the deal here?" If you were to go to the Eternal City you could visit this church, one of the four so-called "major basilicas" of Rome, and not know its significance. Some background is necessary. The basilica sits on land donated to the infant Church by the wealthy Lateran family way back in the fourth century. Such a donation was only recently possible, as the Church had just been relieved of official state persecution only a few years by decree of the newly-converted emperor Constantine, who issued his edict in 313 AD. Eleven years later, on November 9, 324 A.D., Pope St. Sylvester I dedicated the brand new building. Ever since, this Church has been honored as the locale of the pope's official "seat" (cathedral) as the Bishop of Rome. (It is a mistake to think this of St. Peter's basilica.) According to an inscription placed on the facade of the present building, Pope Clement XII in the eighteenth century declared that St. John Lateran is "the mother and head of all the churches of Rome and the world." It was the site of five Ecumenical Councils. Pope Innocent X commissioned the present structure in 1646, so it was already 130 years old when our country was formed in Philadelphia. Beneath the high altar of this church rests the remains of a small wooden table on which, according to tradition, St. Peter himself celebrated Mass. The church honors St. John the Baptist. Sometimes I believe that the pace of modern life added to its intensifying secularism, can intimidate us Christians. We might think that we have become little more than a fringe group with little experience and nothing to say to the wide world. This ancient building we are honoring today gives powerful witness to the fact that our calendar pages embrace centuries not decades. Our worldwide community numbering more than a billion souls has weathered numerous assaults, and has only lasted because of Jesus' promise of standing with it and the Holy Spirit's dwelling within it. But the real joy for us this day is captured in St. Paul's Letter. He tells us that we are the real temple of God. No building, no matter how historic or splendid in decor can match that of a soul in love with God. No edifice of material construction is as important to God as the relationship we build with Him each day of our life. So, while we remain proud of all the historical markers a great basilica such as St. John Lateran gives us, there is really only one mark that counts. It is His signature on our souls.
