The Feeding of the Five Thousand

Jesus spoke to the crowds about the kingdom of God, and he healed those who needed to be cured. As the day was drawing to a close, the Twelve approached him and said, "Dismiss the crowd so that they can go to the surrounding villages and farms and find lodging and provisions; for we are in a deserted place here." He said to them, "Give them some food yourselves." They replied, "Five loaves and two fish are all we have, unless we ourselves go and buy food for all these people." Now the men there numbered about five thousand. Then he said to his disciples, "Have them sit down in groups of about fifty." They did so and made them all sit down. Then taking the five loaves and the two fish, and looking up to heaven, he said the blessing over them, broke them, and gave them to the disciples to set before the crowd. They all ate and were satisfied. And when the leftover fragments were picked up, they filled twelve wicker baskets.

“And yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.”
Matthew 6:29

A flower so full of color,
 aflame in red, yellow and blue,
 points proudly to the sky,
 its glory God-directed.

Native to South Africa,
 a tropical plant favored in Brazil,
 in many lands and households,
 official flower of Los Angeles.

Sterlitzia reginae, its name,
 from Queen Charlotte, Duchess of Mecklenberg-Sterlitz,
 wife of George III of England.

George thought her to lack beauty
 when first he met her, bride-to-be.
 Her beauty became evident,
 this flower preserving her memory.

As a couple, they were loyal,
 fertile in bearing fifteen,
 frugal in household,
 her court named “The Nunnery.”

Charlotte brought beauty
 where it was lacking, in hospitals, orphanages, patronage of the talented – Mozart, Bach among them.

Beauty can be an end in itself.

Beauty can be an agent drawing us out of ourselves, to imitate or to possess what we see.

Beauty is not meant to overpower us, but to leave us free.

Beauty can be held still in a photo or a painting.

Beauty can be in what we see, in what we hear, in what we experience.

Beauty is the work of another, meant to be for another.

Beauty draws us to itself and to the Artist.
